

Healthcare Workforce at the Ready

A portable career. A vital mission. A network to make transitions at ease.

It's a fact, military life requires frequent moves — and those relocations make it difficult for military spouses like you to establish a career. Military to Medicine offers you the training and employer network you need to develop a portable career that moves with you. Like the military service member — always at the ready — your career will be too.

There's a very good reason to choose a career in healthcare — it is the fastest growing field in America with a shortage of qualified workers. Military to Medicine offers a solution to this worker shortage by recruiting and training extended military family members to become workforce-ready healthcare employees. It's a natural fit — healthcare jobs are found in every state; healthcare employers look for both direct patient care providers and those from administrative and technology fields; schedules are flexible; and the experience you gain moves with you.

Whether you have healthcare experience or want to start a new career, Military to Medicine provides the pathway to training and employment opportunities at little to no cost to you.
